DEPARTMENT OF STATE—FRENCH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION FOR 1867.—The following correspondence has taken place upon the subject through the Department of State:

DE GEOFROY TO SEWARD.

[Translation.]

LEGATION OF FRANCE TO THE UNITED STATES, }
WASHINGTON, March 27, 1865. }

SIR: By two decrees, dated June 22d and the 1st of last month, the Emperor has ordered that a universal exhibition of the productions of agriculture, manufacture and the fine arts should be opened at Paris, May 1, 1867. Another decree, also issued February 1st of this year, and published in the Moniteur, the 21st of the same month, has placed this grand international solemnity under the direction and supervision of a Commission, the Presidency of which has been confided to his Serene Highness, the Prince Napoleon.

Such a selection bears too high testimony to the importance which the Emperor attaches to the success of this universal exhibition to leave any need to dwell upon it. As to the Commission, it is composed of several of His Majesty's Ministers, of high functionaries of State, as well as of the most competent of notable individuals.

The Government of his Majesty charges me to give notice officially of those aforesaid decrees to the Cabinet of Washington, to invite its valuable concurrence, and to designate an authority with which the Imperial Commission could have a direct understanding.

It would also be of advantage, to avoid all loss of time, that the Government of the United States should make choice at Paris of an agent who would be specially delegated to be near his Serene Highness the Prince Napoleon.

This mode of procedure is the most suitable channel and the speediest to convey to the knowledge of the Imperial Commission the wishes of the exhibitors from abroad.

The Government of His Majesty would attach a high value to being informed as early as possible of the result of the steps I am charged to take which have an exceptional character of urgency.

The objects sent to the exhibition will be received, in effect, in a palace constructed for the occasion of this solemnity, and the area of which should meet the actual need of the exhibitors of all nations. But that the general arrangements and plans which shall be adopted may be in relation with the claims for space, which will be preferred, it will be necessary that the Imperial Commission should know, with the least delay, what States will take part in the exhibition, and how much space each would desire to obtain.

In ending the letter he has written to me on the subject, the Minister for Foreign Affairs adds that he is gratified to hope that the Government of the United States will show a disposition to facilitate, so far as it is concerned, the success of the work confided to the Imperial Commission. It is too enlightened not to appreciate the advantages of these solemnities, at which nations contract new ties, collect useful and mutual lessons, and thus assure the development of their prosperity.

Accept, sir, the assurance of my high consideration.

L. DE GEOFROY.

SEWARD TO BIGELOW.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, }
WASHINGTON, April 5, 1865. }

SIR: I give you for your information a copy of a note which I have recently received from Geoffrey, Charge d'Affaires of the Emperor, concerning a projected Universal Exhibition of productions of agricultural, manufactures and the fine arts, to be opened at Paris, on the 1st day of May, 1867, under the direction and supervision of a Commission, in which his Serene Highness Prince Napoleon will preside.

You will inform Drouyn de L'huys that the President of the United States regards the project thus described with great favor, as well because of the beneficent influence it may be expected to exert upon the prosperity of the nations as of its tendency to preserve peace and mutual friendship among them.

The Prince Napoleon is most favorably known on this side of the Atlantic, and his connection with the exhibition will increase its proper prestige in the eyes of the Government and people of the United States.

What the Executive Government can do by way of concurrence in the noble purpose of His Majesty, will, therefore, be very cheerfully done. The design and arrangements will be promptly promulgated. For the present you will confer with Drouyn de L'huys, or a Special Agent of this Government, and will bring yourself into near relations with the Prince.

This is as far, however, as the President is able to proceed, without special legislative authority. Application for that authority will be made to Congress when it shall have convened. In the meantime, this Department will receive and give due attention to any suggestions which the Government of France may desire to offer, with a view to a complete success of the contemplated exhibition.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

JOHN BIGELOW.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 16, 1865.

A 'President' a Prisoner

We publish this morning the gratifying announcement of the capture of the traitor and felon Jeff Davis. No particulars have yet been received.

Four years ago the rebel Government, a usurpation which had then existed for a few months, was transferred with great pomp from Montgomery to Richmond. Lately the fugacious chiefs of that pretended government left their Capital in a manner rather too hasty to be compatible with the dignity that ought to belong to a power which has all along asserted its right to be reckoned in the number of the great nations of the earth. Richmond was freed of those who had long cursed it with their presence, they fled with the greatest precipitation, each apprehensive for his own safety; their flight was intercepted at various points and one party after another captured, until finally the great leader of the rebellion has himself fallen into the hands of the Government which at the beginning he so insultingly defied.

Now indeed is the triumph of our Government complete. Of its millions of armed foes none now remain to rise up against it. The chief of the rebellion is not now anywhere regarded except as a malefactor. The enormity of his treason, which surpasses and confounds any the most heinous crime ever before committed by mortal man, plainly enough announces what his fate will be. In addition to his treason it is known that it was he who originated that murderous conspiracy which deprived our noble President of his life. The world will breathe more freely when it has the fortune to be rid of such a monster. It would be fitting too, that those who formed his cabinet, his associates in guilt and his advisers in crime—should not be separated from him in his extremity, but that they should together meet the doom which seems about to be brought so righteously upon them all.

Our Mining Trade.

To any one who remembers how narrow the sphere of our trade was before the discovery of the mines on the tributaries of the Columbia it must be apparent how very valuable the great commerce that is now carried on in that direction has become. For some years past this trade has been of greater extent and of more importance than any other which Oregon has enjoyed. Hence it devolves on our business men to consider both how it may be kept with us, and also the best means of causing it to grow in proportion as the wants of the country that we have been supplying, increase.

A great effort has of late been making to divert our mining trade from its accustomed channels, and to supplant this route by one lately sought to be established from California overland to Idaho. Now it is true that many obstacles lie in the way of transportation from Red Bluff to Owyhee but it is also a fact that the energy and capital of parties in California will go far toward surmounting the difficulties which the way presents. We may assure ourselves that everything will be done to favor that route which enterprise can accomplish. The capital that will be employed in the scheme will do all except to annihilate the distance from California to the mines. Freight is said to be going through at twelve cents per pound, and though we may not believe all that is told us about the great rush from Red Bluff, yet it is certain that this route is exciting a great deal of attention in California.

That route can in no way compete with this, if our men of business perform what ought to be done. But if they stand idly by, satisfied with what the passing day brings them, and careless of the future, it may be found that the trade on which we mostly rely, will suffer seriously by a rivalry, which, if now properly met, may be successfully opposed.

Oregon's first and most pressing want is the means to do her own carrying from San Francisco. Our commercial interests will never prosper as they ought to do, until our shipping, in part, at least, is owned here. Two or three steamers of a capacity suited to those waters, should be under the control of those interested in this line of trade. At present rates, during a flush of business, the steamers on this line gain enormous profits. A great part of this heavy tax on merchandise might be saved by the adoption of some proper plan by which our own carrying could be done. Some time ago there was an excellent opportunity to procure suitable steamers, and it may be possible that they could be obtained for no great sum even now. Vessels that were built in England for blockade running, would be just what we want. If none of these can now be had others of similar build, fast and of light draught, should at once be sought for and placed in the trade.

The next thing to be looked to is the opening of shorter roads through the upper country. There exists no good reason why the route to Owyhee should lie so far to the north as it now does. A road should be made through to Boise and Owyhee by Canyon City, from the nearest available point on the Columbia. The distance would thus be materially lessened, and the cost of freight and travel brought far below present rates. Even as it now is, this route has the undisputed advantage in point of time over that by way of Red Bluff. If proper measures be taken to accomplish the desired end, the cost of transportation by way of the Columbia river will be no greater and perhaps less than the sum which it is assumed is paid for freight on the Red Bluff route. We greatly hope to see the attention of business men directed to this matter. Even though there should be no danger of the loss of any part of our trade, there would be need of immediate action. Our people should not wait for any exhortation to attend to their own interests. Their work is before them, and now is the time for it to begin.

A TRAITOR WHOM OREGON REMEMBERS.—The New York Herald publishes the names of all the [illegible] officers surrendered by Lee. Among them we notice that of the ridiculous gascon Tom Jordan, erstwhile a Captain in the U. S. Army, and for a time stationed at the Dalles. It will be remembered that this most excellent grand rebel was Beauregard's Chief of Staff in the early part of the war and that as such he was the author of that chieftain's orders and proclamations. Those compositions were distinguished by a magniloquence and bathos for which the self appreciating chief of staff had a capacity truly wonderful. So valiant a man—in words—as he ought to have thrown himself upon his own sword rather than to have yielded to the barbarian whom he had called by such ugly names. At the time of the surrender he was a Brigadier General. The height of glory which he supposed he was attaining in the rebel cause is but the depth of infamy. The higher a rebel rose in the service of treason the lower does he sink under the scorn of the whole world.

Public Schools of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, April [illegible], 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Being obliged to secure a passport for New York, which took three hours waiting, on account of the crowd, I could not give as much time to the public schools as I desired to do. But at 11 o'clock I was free, and by the politeness of Judge Blake I was introduced to Mr. J. Denman, at the grammar school called by Mr. D.'s name, in the corner of [illegible] streets. The building is a [illegible] and structure [illegible] up in the hill, commanding a view of [illegible] the entire city and the bay [illegible] It was built in 1864 at a cost of [illegible] with the furniture. Thirteen teachers are employed in this school, viz: Mr. Denman, Principal; Mr. Holbrook, Sub-Principal, and eleven lady assistants. From fifty to sixty pupils are allowed to each room. The most careful attention to [illegible] through [illegible]. Single seats and desks are furnished to every pupil, of Wing's [illegible] patent [illegible]. There are four grades in this school, according to the plan of "Well graded schools," which is the plan adopted in all the schools of the city and which should be in the hands of all school superintendents and directors.

Another feature of this school introduced [illegible] at the suggestion and by the special efforts of Mr. Denman is the separation of the sexes. The boys are in rooms by themselves and the girls by themselves except in Mr. Denman's own room. They pursue the same studies in their several rooms of the same grade. The pupils of lower grades are examined by the Principal and a committee at the close of the year and sent up higher if they pass the examination creditably.

The preparation to enter the grammar schools must be made in the primary schools, of which there are two attached to the grammar school. The other grammar schools of the city have primary schools which supply them as feeders. The course and order of study in the primary and grammar schools and the high schools is given in Well's Manual of Graded Schools.

I had only a few minutes to spend in the four rooms which I visited in the Denman School and could not hear any recitation through. Thorough [illegible] to mark the recitations. I am confident that our Oregon children are capable of equal thoroughness and equal proficiency if they had equal opportunities.

In the upper story of this building is a large hall for the whole school to assemble twice a week for a lesson in music, under a singing teacher. A piano is in this room for the use of the school. Any one of our citizens who has a leisure day at San Francisco will do well to spend it in this school. We can improve our Portland schools by a careful study of the system established in San Francisco. The teachers and friends of public schools here have made themselves familiar with the systems in Boston and Chicago, and some of them have visited Europe and studied the Prussian system. Yours, as ever, TRAVELER.

Wool Growing

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

I notice in your issue of this morning a circular addressed "To the Wool Growers of Oregon," signed by some of our best citizens. This article led me to enquire of one of the directors the cause of this. I learn the factory company have paid during the past two years as high as 22 to 27 [illegible] pound. This was the result partly of high prices in the eastern market in consequence of scarcity in cotton and the large demand for woolen goods in the army. This demand will now cease in consequence of a more liberal supply of cotton and less demand for coarse woolen goods for army consumption.

We must take into consideration that these are prices for unwashed wool, paid for in gold. It is conceded that the loss on unwashed wool, which costs here 25 cents, will make it cost, when washed, 37 to 41¾ cents per pound; therefore these prices compare very favorably with those quoted in the Eastern States. While gold in New York was about 100 per cent. premium, washed wool was worth 75 to 85 cents per pound in greenbacks, which would make it equivalent to 37½ to 42½ cts per pound in New York. It will therefore be observed that the reason there are no purchasers in this market for Eastern manufactories, or for the San Francisco market, is that the prices paid by the Salem company have compelled them to lose money. The Salem Factory think they have dealt fairly with the people during the past year. They have erected a flouring mill at a cost of $10,000. For this improvement they have been obliged to borrow money. They have a large amount of goods on hand for which they find but little sale. They are willing to exchange these goods for wool at fair prices in consequence of dull sales of goods this spring. At present they have not the funds to pay cash for wool. They hope to be able to get enough wool in exchange for their goods to run the mill. In case the company can find an outlet for their goods in a cash market during the coming year they may be able hereafter to pay cash for wool, which would be much more agreeable to them. Prices, from circumstances not under their control, must necessarily be less than last year but many of the farmers will remember that wool has been as low as 12½c, and 20c now is a fair price.

I believe that the farmers should take every precaution to protect their own interests, and I have no doubt but that they will be able to sell a portion of their wool at 16 to 18 cents cash to be shipped from Portland. At the same time they can probably sell their wool to almost any merchant in the valley at 20 cents in payment of their store bills, as the company are prepared to take the wool from such merchants in payment of debts due them, or in exchange for their goods.

The Oregon City Mills will soon be in operation, and this will give a healthy competition in the wool market, and if they will not pay fair prices for wool, eastern or California Agents will come into the market. FAIR PLAY.

PORTLAND, May 15, 1865.

REBELS AT CANYON CITY.—We have been shown a letter from a perfectly reliable party residing at Canyon City, which states that the Thugs of that place had a season of general rejoicing over the news of the President's murder. They became highly exultant, shouted loudly and asserted that they would fire a salute in honor of the occasion. An outbreak was prevented only by the firmness of the Union men who stoutly declared that the rebels should not carry out their threat and at last took possession of the anvils which the latter proposed to use for the purpose above indicated. The names of two of the most conspicuous of these yet unhung villains are Hare and Vernon. Of course they are "Democrats." They are politically and morally the same as their brother Copperheads who have been bawling for "peace" and exclaiming against the bloodshed incident to this war ever since it began.

DEATH OF AN OLD PRINTER.—Samuel McFl[illegible], the oldest printer in Washington and for many years connected with the National Intelligencer, died suddenly recently, in the seventy second year of his age. He has been well known to nearly every printer visiting Washington for many years.

NOT REMOVED.—The Sacramento Union's Washington correspondent says that Assessor Sparks of Washington Territory, has not been removed. Reports were for some time in circulation that his place had been supplied by another but the rumor is without foundation.

The Stockton Daily Independent comes to us in a new dress and printed on a sheet much larger than it formerly used. The Independent has pursued no vacillating course in regard to national politics. It has exerted a great influence for good in California and we are pleased to meet with proofs of its increasing success.

A MODEL LOVE LETTER.—A young and handsome lady of Marysville, according to the Express, received a letter lately from an Oregonian, of which the following is a copy:

Battle Before Richmond

Correspondence of the New York World

We were [illegible] thirty of the [illegible] four deep [illegible] left. All this they did [illegible] confusion but seeing that they [illegible] up a constant [illegible] energy and fought like hounds. They [illegible] battery which behind them [illegible] one [illegible] against [illegible] on the left. By skirmish and [illegible] they [illegible] unwilling [illegible].

It was just a [illegible] of the infantry that Sheridan [illegible]. At one time, indeed, it seemed that utter extermination [illegible] that they wavered, but that they were [illegible]. It will remain to the [illegible] time a matter of marvel that any three cavalry divisions could press back seventeen thousand infantry; but when the infantry blew [illegible] like a great barn door, the simile lost applicability.

[illegible] the enemy's left, the victory that was then [illegible] had passed the region of strategy and resolved to an affair of personal courage. We had met the enemy—were they to be ours? [illegible] every officer fought as if he were the forlorn hope. Mounted on his black pony, the same which he rode at Winchester, Sheridan galloped everywhere, his flushed cheeks all the redder and his quick nervous figure all the more ubiquitous. He galloped once straight down the rebel front, with but a handful of his staff. A dozen bullets whistled for him together; one grazed his arm, at which a faithful Orderly rode; the black pony leaping high in fright, and Sheridan was untouched, but the Orderly lay dead in the field, and the saddle dashed afar empty. General Warren rode with Crawford most of the afternoon, mounted likewise, and making two or three narrow escapes. He was dark, dashing and individual as ever, but for some reason or other was relieved of his command after the battle and Griffin was installed in his place. General Sheridan ordered Warren to report to General Grant's headquarters, sending the order by an Aid. We shall probably have an explanation of this fall from grace very soon. Warren on his own book did not succeed on Friday with his general success, and on Saturday Sheridan was the master spirit, but Warren is a [illegible] as well as a general and is only overshadowed by a greater genius [illegible]. Ayres, accounted the best soldier in the Fifth Corps, but too quietly modest for his own favor, fought like a lion in this pitch of battle, making all the faint-hearted around him ashamed to do ill with such an example contiguous. General Bartlett, keen faced and active like a fiery scimitar, leading his division as if he were an immortal. He was closest at hand in on the most gallant episodes and held at nightfall a bundle of captured battle flags. But Griffin, tall and slight, was the master genius of the Fifth Corps, to which by right he has temporarily succeeded. He led the charge on the flank, and was the first to mount the parapet with his horse, riding over the gunners as May did at Cerro Gordo and cutting them down. Bartlett's brigade behind him, finished the business, and the last cannon was fired for the day against the conquering Federals. General Crawford fulfilled his full share of duties throughout the day, amply sustained by such splendid brigade commanders as Baxter, Coulter and Kellogg, while Gwin and Bowerman were at hand in the division of Gen. Ayers, not to omit the fallen Winthrop, who died to save a friend and win a new laurel. What shall I say for Chamberlain, who, beyond all question, is the first of our brigade commanders, having been the hero of both Quaker road and Gravelly Run and in this action of Five Forks making the air ring with the applauding huzzas of his soldiers who love him? His is one of the names that will survive the common wreck of shoulder-straps after the war.

But I am individualizing. The fight, as we closed upon the rebels, was singularly free from great losses on our side, though desperate as any contest ever fought on the Continent. One prolonged roar of rifle shook the afternoon; we carried no artillery, and the rebel battery, until its capture, raked us like an irrepressible demon, and at every foot of the intrenchments a true man fought both in front and behind. The birds of the forest fled afar; the smoke ascended to heaven; looked in such frenzy none saw the sequel of the closing day. New Richmond rocked in her high towers to watch the impending issue; but soon the day began to look gray, and a pale moon came tremulously out to watch the meeting squadrons. Imagine, along a line of a full mile, thirty thousand men struggling for life and prestige, the woods gathering about them—but yesterday the home of the hawks and chipmonks—now ablaze with bursting shells and showing in the dusk the out of the flames in the tangled grass, and, running up the boles of the pine trees, the roaring scorching tongues. Seven hours this terrible spectacle had been enacted, but the finale of it had almost come.

At seven o'clock the rebels came to the conclusion that they were outflanked and whipped. They had been so busily engaged that they were a long time finding out how desperate were their circumstances; but now, wearied with persistent assaults in front, they fell back to the left, only to see four close lines of battle waiting to drive them across the field, decimated. At the right the horsemen charged them in their vain attempt to fight "out," and in the rear straggling foot and cavalry began also to assemble; slant fire, cross fire, and direct fire by file and volley, rolled in perpetually, cutting down their bravest officers and strewing the fields with bleeding men; groans resounded in the intervals of exploding powder, and to add to their terror and despair their own artillery captured from them threw into their own ranks, from its old position, ungrateful grape and canister enfilading their breastworks, whizzing and plunging by air line and ricochet, and at last bodies of cavalry fairly mounted their entrenchments, and charged down the parapet, slashing and trampling them, and producing inextricable confusion. They had no commanders, at least no orders, and looked in vain for some guiding hand to lead them out of a toil into which they had fallen so bravely and so blindly. A few more volleys, a new and irresistible charge, a shrill and warning command to die or surrender, and, with a sudden and tearful impulse five thousand muskets are flung upon the ground, and five thousand hot, exhausted and impotent men are Sheridan's prisoners of war.

THE CAPTIVE AND FLEEING REBELS

Acting with his usual decision, Sheridan placed his captives in care of a Provost Guard and sent them at once to the rear. Those which escaped he ordered the fiery Custer to pursue with brand and vengeance, and they were pressed far into the desolated forest spent and hungry, many falling by the way of wounds or exhaustion, many pressed down by hoof or saber stroke, and many picked up in mercy and sent back to rejoin their brethren in bonds. We captured in all fully six thousand prisoners. General Sheridan estimates it at five thousand, but the Provost Marshal assured me that he had a line four abreast a full mile long. I entirely bear him out, having ridden for forty minutes in a direction opposite to that they were taking, and growing weary at last of counting or seeing them. They were fine, hearty fellows, almost all Virginians, and seemed to take their capture not unkindly. They wore the gray and not very attractive uniform of the Confederacy, but looked to be warm and fat, and passing along in the night under the fir trees, conveyed at most a romantic idea of grief and tribulation. They were put in a huge pen midway between Big and Little Five Forks for the night; the officers sharing the same fare with the others, from whom indeed, they were undistinguishable.

Thus ended the splendid victory of Five Forks, the least bloody to us but the most successful proportionate to numbers engaged that has been fought during the war. One man out of every three engaged took a prisoner. We captured four cannon, an ambulance train and baggage trains, eight thousand muskets and twenty-eight battle flags. Gen. Longstreet, at [illegible] commanded. Neither he nor Pickett or Bushrod Johnson, division commanders, were taken; they were wise enough to see that the day was lost and imitated Bonaparte after Waterloo.

SUMMARY OF THE BATTLE OF FIVE FORKS

I attribute this victory almost entirely to Sheridan. It was won by strategy and persistence, and in great part by men who would not stand fire the day before. The happy distribution of duties between cavalry and infantry [illegible] a fine rivalry, and the consciousness of Sheridan's guidance inspired confidence. Has any battle so successful ever been fought in Virginia [illegible] East? I think not. It has opened to us the enemy's flank [illegible] that we can [illegible] the Appomattox and [illegible] enabling us to shorten our lines [illegible] intrenchments one half, if [illegible] and putting out of service fifteen thousand of his [illegible]. All this Gen. Sheridan [illegible] has cost him personally no more than eight hundred men and the service no more than fifteen hundred. Compare this with Chancellorsville, Williamsburg, the Wilderness, Bull Run, and what shall we say? The enemy must have lost in this fight three thousand in killed and wounded.

Treatment of Foreign Vessels of War.—Washington, Tuesday, April 11, 1865. Another important proclamation was issued to-day, claiming that vessels of war of foreign nations shall no longer be subject to all restrictions as at present, but shall have the same rights and hospitalities [illegible] as foreign men of war in the ports of the United States, and declaring that the vessels of war of every nation shall receive [illegible] treatment which in those ports they accord to ours, as follows:

Whereas, for some time past, vessels of war of the United States have been refused in certain ports privileges and immunities to which they were entitled by treaty, public law, or the comity of nations, at the same time that vessels of war of the countries wherein the said privileges and immunities have been withheld have enjoyed them fully and uninterruptedly in the ports of the United States, which condition of things has not always been forcibly resisted by the United States, although on the other hand they have not at any time failed to protest against and declare their dissatisfaction with the same. In the view of the United States no condition any longer exists which can be claimed to justify the denial to them by any one of said nations of the customary naval rights such as has heretofore been so unnecessarily persisted in; now, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do hereby make known that if after a reasonable time shall have elapsed for the intelligence of this proclamation to reach any foreign country in whose ports the said privileges and immunities shall have been refused as aforesaid, they shall continue to be so refused, then and thenceforth the same privileges and immunities shall be refused to the vessels of war of that country in the ports of the United States, and this refusal shall continue until the war vessels of the United States shall have been placed upon an entire equality in the foreign ports aforesaid with similar vessels of other countries. The United States, whatever claim or pretense may have existed heretofore, are now at least entitled to claim and concede an entire and friendly equality of rights and hospitalities with all maritime nations.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this eleventh day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty-ninth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President: Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State.

Proclamation by the President—Closing of Southern Ports. Whereas, By my proclamation of the 19th and 27th days of April, 1861, the ports of the United States in the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, were declared to be subject to the blockade; but whereas the said blockade has in consequence of actual military occupation by this Government, since been conditionally set aside or relaxed in respect to the ports of Norfolk and Alexandria, in the State of Virginia; Beaufort in the State of North Carolina; Pensacola and Fernandina, in the State of Florida, and New Orleans in the State of Louisiana; and whereas by the fourth section of the Act of Congress, approved on the 13th of July, 1861, entitled "An Act further to provide for the collection of duties on imports and for other purposes," the President for other reasons therein set forth, is authorized to close certain ports of entry; Now therefore, be it known that I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do hereby proclaim that the ports of Richmond, Tappahannock, Cherrystone, Yorktown and Petersburg in Virginia; of Camden (Elizabeth City), Edenton, Plymouth, Washington, Newbern, Ocracoke and Wilmington, North Carolina; of Charleston, Georgetown and Beaufort in South Carolina; of Savannah, St. Marys, Brunswick and Darien in Georgia; of Mobile in Alabama; of Pearl River, Shieldsborough, Natchez and Vicksburg in Mississippi; of St. Augustine, Key West, St. Marks, Port Leon, St. Johns, Jacksonville and Apalachicola in Florida; of Teche, Franklin in Louisiana; of Galveston, La Salle, Brazos de Santiago, Point Isabel, and Brownsville in Texas, are hereby closed, and all right of importation, warehousing and other privileges shall, in respect to the ports aforesaid, cease until they shall have been opened by order of the President; and if, while the said ports are so closed, any ship or vessel from beyond the United States or having on board any articles subject to duties shall attempt to enter any such port, the same together with its tackle, apparel, furniture and cargo shall be forfeited to the United States.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this eleventh day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty-ninth.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
Asthma, Croup,
Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

Its action is expectorant, alterative, sudorific, sedative, diaphoretic and diuretic, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
